The Catalysis Center for Energy Innovation (CCEI) at the University of Delaware (UD) is recruiting highly motivated undergraduate students who are studying chemical engineering, chemistry or a related field of study and interested in gaining valuable research experience during the summer at UD or one of the center's participating partner institutions. CCEI focuses on developing catalytic technologies for sustainable energy applications. Our summer researchers collaborate with faculty, scientific staff and mentors to conduct research on topics related to the synthesis, characterization and analysis of heterogeneous catalysts for advanced biofuels and biochemical production.
